WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1817

From the New York Mercantile Advertiser.

Latest from England.

Last evening arrived at this port, the ships Ann Maria, Waite, and Juno, Rathbone, both in 40 days from Liverpool, having sailed from the outer harbour on the 14th of March, in company with many other vessels for the United States.

By these arrivals the Editors of the Mercantile Advertiser have received Liverpool papers to the 14th, and London to the 12th ult. The most interesting articles they contain are extracted for this day's paper.

The above vessels brought about 6,000 letters.

American stocks were at par in England.

Flour and cotton had advanced a little.

The prince Regent approved and signed, on the 4th of March, the bill suspending the Habeas Corpus Act. Immediately after, several persons who had been engaged in the late riots, were arrested, and a Mr. Cashman executed.

At Manchester, Birmingham, and in several of the manufacturing towns of Scotland, as late as the 10th & 11th of March, large bodies of the people had assembled & manifested a riotous disposition.

The weather in England, during the months of Feb. and the first 12 days in March, had been unusually severe and tempestuous, and we are sorry to learn that several American vessels have been lost on the European coast.

The Liverpool Mercury of the 24th March, states, that there were then in that port 600 sail of vessels, out of which, from a moderate calculation, there were upwards of 300 ready for sea.

A letter from a member of parliament to his correspondent in Liverpool, states that it is the intention of government to reduce, without delay, the present high duty on rice imported from foreign countries, to the same rate which is now payable on that article imported from British plantations—(7-6 1-4 cwt.)

LONDON, March 5.

The funds continue to rise with an unprecedented rapidity. Consols this morning were at one time 69 3-4. It is stated in the city, that one great cause of the advance is the large majorities in Parliament in favor of ministers, who have pledged themselves to maintain inviolate the Sinking Fund.

The royal assent was given by commission yesterday to the habeas corpus suspension act. Not above 3 or 4 petitions have been presented against it.

March 7.

Immense sums have been betted in the city that consols would not reach 70 by the first of April. The bets have been lost. Consols, at the opening of the market this morning, were done at 69-1; at twelve o'clock they had advanced to 71. Very large sums have been paid this morning.

In the debates last night, Mr. Wellesley Pole stated, that "the mint was now receiving gold from the Bank to be coined, for the purpose of enabling them to resume cash payments. The Bank has also taken measures to recal silver tokens."

The master of the mint is authorised to put what private marks he pleases. There have been twelve precedents since the reign of Charles I. The manner in which the new coinage has been brought into circulation, is the object of most merited and general panegyric.

There is an innovation in the mode of calling meetings in the counties. We mean the practice of including the Requisitions for county meetings, of the mass of the inhabitants. Formerly the Requisition ran thus—"the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy, and Freeholders." None but the Freeholders were summoned. Now the call is extended to the inhabitants in general, of whom the freeholders must be the minority. From such meetings can any fair or free discussion be expected.

The Funds are lower this morning, on account of the number of the late purchasers and speculators realizing the great profits that have accrued.

LONDON, March 12.

About twelve o'clock last night intelligence was received at Lord Sidmouth's office, that several hundred persons were collected in Skinner street, determined to rescue Cashman as soon as he should be brought out in the morning. Orders were immediately given in consequence from Lord Sidmouth's office, that the troops should be at their stations this morning as early as five o'clock. It is probable that the peace of the town was very much owing to this arrangement.

We have given in our proceeding columns the fullest particulars of the execution of Cashman.

Courier.

Corn Exchange, March 12.

We had a good supply of wheat from Suffolk this morning, but having few buyers at market, sales were heavy at Monday's prices. Fine barley met ready sale upon the same terms as were obtained on Monday, but the inferior qualities were rather cheaper. Oats, peas and beans were dull sale, and the ordinary samples rather cheaper.

LIVERPOOL, March 14.

Manchester—The Times of Wednesday says, that last Friday evening an express was received at the Home Secretary of State's office, the purport of which was of such a nature, as immediately to induce government to dispatch one of the police magistrates and a King's Messenger to Manchester, for the apprehension of persons suspected of high treason—four persons were taken up, and a search instituted after others.

Stocks—On Wednesday evening, Red. Ann. shut.—Consols 69 5-8.

The fall of stock is ascribed to the disorders and arrests at Manchester.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Monday, March 3.

Petitions for Reform.

Sir F. Burdett moved, that the petitions which lay on the floor, signed by nearly a million of subscribers, should be received. There appeared to be nearly a waggon load; they almost covered the floor of the House; we understood there were 600. The Speaker—Bring them up.—(a laugh) It appeared that a great proportion of petitions were printed. The Speaker informed the Hon. Baronet that he must take all such back; one was also discovered to be addressed to the Prince Regent, which was likewise ordered to be returned. The Speaker suggested the propriety of proceeding with the petitions on some future day. Sir Francis acquiesced. A Member discovered that one whole column of signatures was in the same hand writing, and that many signatures were detached from the petitions. Serjeant Best insisted that this circumstance was a gross contempt of the House. The debate on the question, whether the petitions should lie on the table, was adjourned.

HOUSE OF LORDS, March 7.

The Earl of Liverpool moved the third reading of the Treasonable Practices bill; but Lord Holland having pointed out some error, it was, after a short discussion, postponed till Monday, in order to allow time for correcting them—The army & Navy Seduction bill, was read a third time, passed and sent back to the Commons for their concurrence in an amendment made by their Lordships.

DISTRESS IN IRELAND.

The Earl of Darnley thought it necessary again to call the attention of Ministers to the distressed state of the people in many parts of Ireland, in consequence of the scarcity and dearness of provisions. Riot, it was known, had already taken place in some quarters, in consequence of the distress of the people, and the fact was, that unless some remedy was promptly applied, there would be absolute want in some districts, where the existing scarcity was aggravated by the difficulty of transporting provisions. He was not aware of the information upon which Ministers had acted, in refusing to suspend the distillation in Ireland, but he should feel it his duty, on an early day, to move for that information. If the quantity of grain used for that purpose were immediately made available for human sustenance, he was satisfied it would have a most beneficial effect upon the people of Ireland, by immediately tending to relieve them from that dreadful pressure under which they were now struggling, & in many quarters, with the apprehension before them of actual want.

The Earl of Liverpool said, that this subject had occupied and was now occupying the most anxious attention of his Majesty's Ministers, who were of course, aware of its great importance.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Friday March 7.

Lord Cochrane intimated, that it was his intention, on an early day, to submit to the house certain resolutions for the purpose of reducing the interest of the funded debt, in the degree that the rents of land and the prices of all commodities had been reduced.

Sir F. Burdett postponed his notice for the resumption of the debate on Reform Petitions, till Wednesday.

London Corn Exchange, March 10.

The supply of wheat the early part of this day's market being very small, a few sales were then made at an advance of 4s. per quarter on last Monday's prices; but the arrivals increasing afterwards, the sales became heavy, and the early prices were not obtainable by 2s. per quarter. Barley sold readily at last week's prices. Peas are 2s per quarter dearer. Oats and beans were dull sale, but prices continue the same as last week.

Prices of corn and flour in Liverpool.

Corn exchange, Tuesday, March 11th, 1817.

There was a good deal of business done at to-day's market; every description of grain was in request. Fine old wheat fully maintained last week's prices; oats are 3d to 4d. per bushel higher; American flour 6d to 1s per barrel, and oatmeal 3s. per pack. Barley, Malt and beans fully support last week's currency.

Whitehaven, March 11.

The weather since our last, has been much the same in this quarter as for many weeks past; frequent squalls of wind, with showers of hail, rain &c.—and generally a greater degree of cold than was experienced in the month of December.

There was a considerable fall of snow last week at Carlisle and the neighbourhood. The Glasgow mail was stopped for some time on Thursday last, about 25 miles on the other side of Moffat.

It is said that a criminal information has been filed against Cobbett, for a libel in one of his recent publications. Indeed, it appears from Lord Sidmouth's speech, in the house of Lords, that the great law officers have directions to prosecute all libellers, where there is a possibility of bringing them to conviction.

We are sorry to state, that there were some riotous proceedings at Maryport on Saturday se'ennight, originating in the exportation of provisions. A tumultuous assembly emptied a small vessel loaded with potatoes, which were carried off; and on Tuesday the rioters proceeded to Allonby, and carried off a considerable quantity of flour, and about 11 tons of oatmeal; the road between Allonby and Maryport was much strewed with meal. Wednesday an alarm was given that they were on their road to Skinburness, where there was a considerable quantity of grain. Thursday morning a party of the cavalry lying at Maryport, went off to the disturbed places; a number of special constables were also appointed, and every precaution was adopted to protect property.

Projects are suggested in the American papers for the formation of canals to connect lake Erie with the Hudson river, and lake Michigan with the Mississippi.

It is a lamentable fact, that nearly 20,000 barrels of American flour have been lost in the late tempestuous weather; being nearly a fifth of the whole importation.

Thursday se'ennight a violent thunder storm was experienced in Liverpool, the thunder was uncommonly loud, and the lightning remarkably vivid—The wind at the same time, was very cold, and blew a perfect hurricane.

The same storm was experienced at Manchester. About six o'clock it threw down three chimneys at Moss side; one fell to the ground, another through the roof into a room where 4 female servants slept, one of whom being out of bed, fortunately escaped; her bed fellow, who was in bed, was killed upon the spot; and the other two escaped, being at a distant part of the room. The unfortunate deceased was a native of Preston.

The same storm was likewise experienced at Lancaster. The lightning struck and shivered the mast of a Scotch sloop, lying near the Marsh Point in the river. Much glass was broken in the town by the hail; two barns were blown down at Crockerham; and, we are sorry to add, that a women and child were killed at Preston, by a chimney falling on them.

Letters lately received from Trieste state, that a very brisk trade is carried on in that port, in consequence of large exportations of fire arms and sabres from thence to S. America.

New-York April 26.

An erroneous interpretation having gone forth of what was said by the chancellor of the exchequer on Wednesday, we think it necessary to state, that the vote proposed in the committee of ways and means on that day was for 18,000,000l of of Exchequer bills, to exchange for the following bills outstanding:—

Irish exchequer bills	4,200,000
English exchequer bills	12,200,000
Ditto ditto	1,700,000
	18,100,000l

This vote adds nothing to the unfunded debt, but will save the country from 3 to 600,000l. per ann. in the difference of interest of the old bills at 3d and the new ones at 2 1-2d.

Upon the fullest consideration of the applications for stopping the distillation of spirits from grain in Ireland, his Majesty's ministers have determined to refrain from that measure, being satisfied it would create a very trifling saving of grain used by the lawful distiller, his stock being nearly complete, but that it would afford the greatest encouragement to illicit distillation, and the frauds of smuggling

By the papers from Manchester and Macclesfield, we are happy to find that every thing remains quiet, and that of the deluded persons who had set off to proceed to London, few, if any, had prosecuted their journey farther than Leek & Ashbourne. The larger part have been prevailed upon to return "repentant to their homes."

Official information was received in Glasgow yesterday, that the lords of Treasury intend to submit to parliament, a bill to suspend, until the 5th April, 1817, the duties payable on the importation of rice and Indian corn. Instructions have therefore been given to the proper officers to permit the importation of these articles, duty free, for home consumption, until the pleasure of parliament shall be known. The duty on rice is 20s. 1-4d.

London, 26th Feb. 1817.

SIR—I think it right to state to you for the information of the Members of the American Chamber of Commerce, that it is the intention of H. M. government, to propose to reduce the high duty on Rice imported from foreign Countries to the rate which is now payable on that article if imported from the British Plantations.

This measure is intended to be carried into effect without delay.

FROM CALCUTTA

We learn by Captain LORING, of the MENTOR, that a French Governor had arrived, and received possession of Chernandagore the former French settlement thirty miles above Calcutta. Pondicherry one hundred miles below Madras, on the Coromandel, had also been delivered to the French authorities; but the territory ceded with those places scarcely surpassed the diameter of 3 miles round which the English have established such a line of donaniers that the "French possessions of the East are merely nominal; every article imported into them, and exported from them, being subject to the English Company's duties.

Capt. L. passed St. Helena as late as the 8th of last month the land six miles distant; the forbidden aspect of which was all that presented itself; no vessels in sight.

All articles at Calcutta were nearly double their former prices

The accounts of the late Col. Benjamin Hawkins, agent of Indian affairs in the Creek nation exceeding (according to the Auditors and comptroler's reports) two hundred thousand dollars, were on the 23d inst. closed with goverment, by his executor, William Hawkins Esq late governor of the state of North Carolina. The balance though not very large was in favor of the Colonel's estate. During the last session of Congress, many of the members were impressed with the opinion that there was a general delinquency on the part of the agents in the Indian Department. We notice this settlement, with a view to do away any sentiment that might have been entertained unfavorable to the well earned fame of that valuable and distinguished officer. Nat. Intel.

ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 1817.

MR. GROSVENOR.

DIED, at Belmont, in Maryland, the seat of the hon. A. C. Hanson, the hon. THOMAS P. GROSVENOR, M. C. in the 58th year of his age.

On the character of a person so well known, we should think it unnecessary to dilate, nor should we indeed mingle it with the multitude of those who receive their first and only notice from the newspaper obituaries, if we did not consider it a debt, due to the nation in general, to our subscribers in particular, and above all to our own hearts, on the separation from us all of this great and estimable man, to illustrate our columns with his name, and to make an effort, however feeble, to put on public record the sentimens with which his virtues and his talents have impressed us, and to give vent to the profound sorrow with which his departure has filled us, in common with the far greater part of the people of the United States.

The death of Mr. Grosvenor has left a blank in our national councils which will not for a long time be filled, and in the circle of private life a void which will not cease to be regarded with hopeless regret till he himself shall cease to be remembered.

His eloquence may be said to have, amongst us, constituted a species. What is true of him would not be true of any other orator, at least on this side of the Atlantic; nor do we know of one by a comparison with whom an adequate conception of Grosvenor's eloquence could be conveyed. Its kind was the same as that of the illustrious Charles James Fox—in degree alone its essential difference consisted. The same ardent feeling, earnestness and animation—the same overflowing fullness of conception and tumult of thoughts which seemed as if they would burst the bosom that contained them in their struggles for precedence—the same apparent artlessness of arrangement which diffused the glowing tint of nature thro' the complexion of every speech, and imparted to it a beauty and an effect beyond the skill of wrought-up rhetoricians—the same disdain of factitious vulgar logic and useless gaudy drapery—the same constant intermixture of matter of fact, and plain common sense with the most acute, refined, & subtle reasoning which distinguished Mr. Fox from all other orators, constituted the pre-eminent characteristics of Mr. Grosvenor's eloquence, and gave it that singular, felicitous advantage so very seldom possessed by that which, amongst us, courtesy calls eloquence—namely the stamp of sincerity and feeling.—They were not equals—but they were both GREAT MEN—& great men of the same kind.—Similes non pares.—How far fifty thousand pounds sterling bestowed exclusively upon his education—a set of the most learned instructors in Europe, and continual, every day intercourse, from the cradle up, with the most profound scholars and statesmen of the age, (for those Mr. Fox enjoyed) would have diminished the inequality, is a question which cannot now be determined—but this may safely be affirmed that the natural endowments of our American statesman were of an order sufficiently elevated to render it doubtful whether, with the aid of similar advantages, any man has for a long time existed, to a level with whom he might not have successfully aspired.

It is certain that no man of discernment could have seen much of the great British orator and of Mr. Grosvenor, when figuring in their respective senates, without pronouncing the latter to be the Charles Fox of the new world. That quickness of perception, that energy of thought and action, and that endless versatility of genius which enabled Mr. Fox to discern with the rapidity of lightning every advantage, and successfully to grapple with an Herculean gripe every point and every opponent, and which procured for him an undisputed title to the reputation adjudged to him by Edmund Burke, of "the greatest DEBATER the world ever saw," Mr. Grosvenor also possessed in an eminent though not equal degree. We have been told that a very able and acute speaker,* the representative in congress from one of the new states who had experienced the effect of these powers, once said that for readiness and strength on any and every topic that arose in debate, or as he emphatically called it "ROLL AND TUMBLE" in argument, Grosvenor had not an equal in congress.

Charles Fox had a perfection which no man, it is believed, ever enjoyed in an equal degree. On all important occasions, he was so entirely absorbed in the subject upon which his talents were employed, that he seemed for the time being, to be totally unconscious of his own existence; his hearers were riveted to the matter, not to the man—Charles Fox disappeared and left them insensible to all but the argument. Thus he seldom failed to impress all who were not profoundly versed in his subject, and in himself, with the persuasion that he was speaking with the same impartiality, sincerity and truth, and for a state full as dear to his heart, as if he were pouring forth his soul at the judgment seat on the last day. His ardent zeal and his apparent candour, produced a scarcely less powerful effect than the matchless ingenuity of his arguments; & those who listened must have had time to cool and reflect, before they could believe that what they were hearing was the result of superlative ingenuity, but was a mere natural torrent gushing unconsidered, with impetuous force from the heart. As his arguments drew from this source an almost irresistible force, so they derived an inexpressible charm from the candour and liberality which in things personal to others, he seldom failed to display—from the total absence of vulgar asperity, of arrogance, of malicious invective and of sly invidious insinuation, which above all things he abhorred, and in which all his great cotemporaries more or less indulged. It was truly said of him by Burke, that there was not in his composition a spark of pride, or of ferocity, or complexional despotism, and the perpetual operation of that happy disposition on his eloquence, produced in the sentiments of his hearers the effect of a talisman.

Of the first of these qualities Mr. Grosvenor had his share—when he spoke on the floor of Congress it was evident to the most obtuse observer, that to display his eloquence made no part of his object; his unaffected language and the simple distribution of his matter, evinced only an ardent desire to investigate truth, and to bring all that he had been able to collect or think of, to the general stock of National wisdom. He never came, as too many do, like a wanton from her toilet, patched up and painted, and decked in gaudery, thrice rehearsed in oratorical grimace, trained "to separate frown from smile and smile from frown" and prepared to play off the arts and lures of meretricious eloquence—but he came, as his station, and indeed his own nature prescribed, like a man and a statesman, to serve his country, and earn an honest fame by honest arts. He made, not himself, but the question before the house, the prominent object, retiring behind which, he pushed it boldly and skilfully into view. It was not till this object was accomplished that he suffered the eye of the house to rest upon himself, Till his eloquence had produced conviction, the orator was scarcely thought of; and he was then heaped with applause as a just homage to the power of his arguments, and admired for the successful exertion of his brilliant genius in the cause of integrity and truth.

In the candour and liberality which he uniformly displayed, on all personal occasions, he was, (we say it without fear of contradiction) a full match to the great man with whom we have compared him; nor have his very adversaries been sparing in their acknowledgments of his value in that respect. Whenever occasion occurred which demanded from him the employment of severity, there never was anything rancorous or ungenerous in his observations: rebuke itself, in the hands of Grosvenor, lost the air of severity, and came forth with a reluctance and a softening tenderness which evinced that even on an adversary, he would rather, if it were compatible with truth and duty, bestow praise than censure.

But, how short soever he may have fallen of Mr. Fox, in the high external accomplishments of the finished orator and statesman, the difference was amply supplied by the more simple unambitious integrity of his purposes. A federalist upon principle, his soul disdained to be the blind devotee of faction. He loved federalism, because he believed it in his conscience, to be the best and wisest scheme of government in the country.—He was a party man only as a mean, his end and sole ultimate object being his country; before which all considerations of party, or self, melted into nothing, as the light of a paper in the blaze of a meridian summer sun. To bring evidence in proof of an uncontradicted fact, may appear superfluous. Yet, let no one when speaking on this subject, omit to state, that whatever the value of the act for establishing a National Bank may be to the Union, it is to the honorable and principled exertions of this gentleman, in contradiction to the opinion of a large portion of his party, and to his influence over that party in general, that the country is indebted for that important act.

The death of such a man, may be regarded as a national loss, which, whether we view him as an active politician, or an example, will not readily be supplied. With the public, we sincerely join in lamenting it. With his private friends and connexions, we feelingly sympathize.—Profound indeed must their sorrow be—but even the bitterness of their anguish, must be greatly assuaged by the consolatory assurance, which their more intimate acquaintance with his habits must necessarily afford them, (if only half what is said of him be true) that he has already received in exchange for this world of pain and sorrow and tears and hazard and uncertainty, another where the account of a life, governed by sound principle, and pure morality, and devoted to religion and the exercise of active virtue, had gone before him and prepared for his reception, an eternity of bliss.

ANECDOTE.

In one of the little chapels of the church Del Parte, Naples, there is a picture of St Michael on Satan. It is observable, that the latter is represented with the face of a beautiful female, and the reason given is whimsical enough. The countenance of the Devil is the picture of a very beautiful lady, who unfortunately fell in love with Diomedes Caraffa, bishop of Arino, who to shew his abhorrence for her sacralegious passion, when fitting up this chapel for his mausolemn, ordered the painter to degrade her into the Infernal Spirit & place her portrait under the spear of the archangel, for the satisfaction of the Ladies. I must add, that this ungallant prelate has not been canonized.

Forty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber's farm near Alexandria, on the Saturday night preceding the Easter Holidays, a negro man, named Dick, who commonly calls himself RICHARD PARKER.—Dick formerly belonged to the estate of William Triplett, deceased; is very black, stoops a little in the shoulders, but is likely; has formerly worn earrings, and has rather a wild look out of his eyes when spoken to, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, and is a smart, intelligent fellow. He went off well supplied with clothes of which he has a variety—a black velvet waistcoat, and a dark brown great coat with a large cape, are the only articles recollected—a good stock of money; and it is more than probable has been furnished with papers to represent him as a freeman, as his father & other relations in Alexandria are free people. If the above described man should be taken in the county of Fairfax, and district of Columbia, and secured so that I get him again, I will give Twenty Dollars; and, if out of these places, the above reward, with all reasonable charges if brought home

AUGUSTINE I. SMITH.

P. S. From the preparations made by this fellow, previous to his leaving home, it is probable that he has made an attempt to get to the northward.
